What are you pretending not to know?

The question is not “What don’t you know?” It has to do with what you’re turning away from; what you’re

In his book, ‘You. Are. The. One.’, Kute Blackson writes that deep down there is a part of you that knows

In this rational world we bombard ourselves with doubt about our gut feelings. What if I am wrong? What

Kute says that one of the sneaky strategies he has seen people play with themselves is this game of “

“If you were to truly admit your deepest truth then you would no longer have any excuses to not move forward

What don’t you want to acknowledge? What are you persuading yourself that you’re baffled about? Is it

Is it about your unfulfilling relationship? The one you’re telling yourself you don’t know what to do about
